ILLS FROM THE TOWN PUMP

BY ELVIRA SYDNOR MILLER.

Jane has three sweethearts and each admires her.
And each one courts her, and each desires her.
And oh, it is Jane's ardent wish,
To go to the Jamestown Exposition.
Now sweetheart number one declares
That for this wish she has his prayers.
And oh, he hopes and hopes each day
That all the votes will come Jane's way.
But oh, his dearest Jane notes
Good wishes can't be used for votes.
Said sweetheart number two, "I take
The paper weekly for Jane's sake.
So she can surely count on me.
One good vote direct from me.
Now this is kind, but that 'tis slip
Marked with her name don't land the trip.
"I'll number three votes right and day
And shows his love in a winning way.
And votes for her who is his pride.
He gets each outside vote beside.
And if she wins! Well, what a prize!
Her heart and hand are number three's."

The appointment of Randolph Blain as Judge of the Police Court has been hailed with approbation by the women of Louisville, not strictly because he is to the manner born, and of the school of politicians of which the late Charles D. Jacob was the graceful exponent, but because he has taken a stand on a subject which has agitated the wearers of bloomers for so, these many days.

The anti-spitting ordinance has been a dead letter for some years and no special attempts were made to enforce it. Go where you will in public places, or public conveyances and you were disgusted with the filthy conduct of human hogs who ought to have been rounded up in the slaughter house. Women boarded a car in clean skirts, dainty footgear and spotless bosoms only to return home from such trips with soiled clothing necessitating a second fee to the laundress.

The ordinary rules of health and cleanliness were shamefully ignored; time and again the women of Louisville have expressed their disgust at the same. Now, if Judge Blain will suppress this nuisance he will obtain the warmest gratitude of all lovers of cleanliness and comfort; and here is another tip for his judges: let him go after the women who go around in public with wads of toilet paper in their mouths. If they will chew them do so in the privacy of their homes, but the sight of a stylish or pretty woman working her jaws overtire before spectators is a spectacle to make an angel weep. Ladies, the cow may not have patented her chewing arrangement—more's the pity, but don't infringe upon it, for your own dear sakes.

I've suffered through false Araminta. She tries my affection.
For she craves oyster suppers in winter
And demands ice cream sodas just now.
She has filled me just as
I'm an oyster that coughs up no pearl.
For the love which she styles unrequited
Ours no ice in the "shell" with this girl.

The prosperity of our people is evidenced by the increased value of land throughout the county. The man who wants a country home now has to pay a good price for it, when they were years ago it would have cost but a trifling sum. Property all around is soaring; the woods have been cleared and lovely cultivated residences are seen in process of construction wherever you turn. They remind one of the sad sweet ballad of Jane who was never the same after she returned from her visit to the city with a naughty little twinkle in her eye.

All about Kosmosdale cluster many pleasant associations of other days. Louisvillians will recall the times when Madison Miller and in fact the whole Miller clan owned beautiful homesteads in the neighborhood and extended a hearty welcome to the stranger within their gates. The home of Mr. Miller was called Clover Hill. It was surrounded by beautiful grounds, an old fashioned garden bordered with box and gay with the favorite flowers of our grandmothers. Big forest trees cast friendly shadows over the hospitable roof, the scent of red clover filled the air and could be detected for miles around, while inside the friendly walls there were laughter and feasting and good fellowship from year to year. Mr. Miller was a writer of graceful verse and published a small volume of poems which was favorably received. Mary Anderson was once a guest at Clover Hill and on one occasion a member of the family made the trip to England to convey a baby step-sister of the famous actress to the mother who had been obliged to leave it behind when she went abroad.

Gay riding parties from Louisville often halted for supper at Clover Hill and the old gardens were riotous with merry voices as the boys and girls chased and dickered among the lilacs and syringas.

Close by was the farm of the late A. P. Farnsley one of the best known and most respected farmers of this section. Mr. Farnsley was about the first man to raise the smooth-rind cantelope, something on the order of the Rocky Ford perhaps. He was well abreast of his times and experimented with many new varieties of fruit and vegetables, besides being a graceful writer on horticultural and agricultural topics.

Dr. Bohannon was another neighbor, and a courtly old Virginian who at that time land could have been bought for a modest sum, but now the old order has changed, the old heads of the houses are dead, their homes have passed into the hands of strangers or have been torn down to make way for the march of progress. Jacob Park now covers the slopes and summit of Burnt Knob, Button Mould and Lost Knob are dotted with summer cottages, and the tennis player is out for the march of progress. Jacob Park now covers the slopes and summit of Burnt Knob, Button Mould and Lost Knob are dotted with summer cottages, and the tennis player is out for the march of progress.

There is a charm in this beautiful green country with its waving meadows white with daisies and glad with the march of progress. While close at hand the hill slopes loom up velvety purple and blue, like the bloom on a damson and there are scattered clumps of trees and narrow footpaths engirt with weeds and bushes over which the rabbit scurries in fight as you pass. And the town man who once had this land offered him for a song kicks himself when he thinks how he refused it.

When I and Cupid used to strive
To win a maiden fair,
Behind a team we loved to drive
Out to the Fern Creek Fair.
When, coming home, we took our ways
Past lonely fields and daisies,
Loving-kind "neath the stars" soft rays,
Our gait was like a snail's.
For when on Cupid's ways you go
The pace you set is very slow.
We still go to the Fern Creek Fair
To see a summer show,
But coming home I lash the mare
And shake the reins and say—
"I'm a fast man, I'm a fast man,
Don't go out on a strike."
And Cupid, how that old shebang
Sails homeward up the air,
For things have altered much somehow—
We're married when we're driving now.

AFTER THEM

County Patrolmen Get Busy and Arrest Eight Alleged Suspects Last Saturday and Sunday.

Cal. Marshall and Frank Williams found their positions as county patrolmen strenuous last Saturday and Sunday, when they succeeded in rounding up eight people upon different charges.

Jane Davis, a white woman, was found drunk on the public highway near Fisherville, and was taken to jail, where she was slated for breach of the peace.
Albert Johnson, claiming Marion, Ind., as his home, and Ernest Goff, who says he is from Scranton, Miss., were arrested at Fisherville and charged with being suspected felons.
It is believed they are wanted at New Haven for the alleged robbery of a store there. They will be tried tomorrow in Magistrate O'Conner's court.

John Gaddis and Ernest Simpson were caught at Tucker's Station early Sunday morning after a long watch for their positions as county patrolmen strenuous last Saturday and Sunday, when they succeeded in rounding up eight people upon different charges.

Ernest Simpson is said to have forged the name of Miss. Black to order on Dehler Bros. for a jack-screw. He was held to answer the charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses.

IN DOUBT

Impossible to Pick the Winner

In The Jeffersonian's James-town Contest.

Many Changes in The Standing of The Candidates—Miss Vaughn Makes Remarkable Gain.

EXTRA VOTES NEXT WEEK.

Votes, as thick as the falling snowflakes in December, have been descending in The Jeffersonian's contest for the past ten days, resulting in numerous changes in the standing of the candidates, none of whom is yet in a position to read their title clear to the great fifteen-days' trip to Jamestown and the seashore.

Miss Gray, in the first division, maintains the lead by about 2,000 votes. Mrs. Howell is second, Miss Mills third, and Miss Vaughn makes a remarkable jump from ninth to fourth place. Mrs. Phillips, Miss Bryan and Miss Winand also make big gains. Any of these candidates can with ease "go up head," and now should be a good time to make renewed efforts to capture the extra 1,000 votes to be awarded to the leading candidate in each district.

In district B Miss Dellinger and Miss Barnett swap places, Miss Dellinger now being in the lead, but the margin between these two is so small that the race may be called "nip and tuck" between them.
Miss Moreman adds more than 500 votes to her total which makes her a formidable candidate.
Mrs. William Farnsley is a new entrant in district A and if her friends should get to work at once she will be a factor in the contest.

Much good-natured rivalry among the candidates is manifest, and the friends of each are enthusiastic. The contest is so evenly balanced, many changes are likely to occur this week. The contest next Tuesday will decide the disposition of the extra 1,000 votes offered in each district to the candidates polling the most votes during July.

Contestants and their friends should therefore poll their votes before Tuesday, noon, in order to have them included in next week's count.
Do not overlook the fact that votes are given on all subscriptions, advertising and job work, and that a few subscriptions will add materially to the vote of a candidate. It ought to be very easy to get subscribers anywhere in Jefferson county for the only local newspaper it has, and also among former residents to whom the paper would be "like a letter from home." Another point that should not be overlooked is the opportunity for two people to work together, the votes being cast for one, who if successful in polling the greatest number cast during the contest, may select the third member of the party to take this delightful trip at a delightful time of the year to the nation's capital, to Jamestown and the Atlantic coast without a cent of expense attached, every comfort and convenience being paid for by The Jeffersonian.

The vote in detail follows:

E. B. SYDNOR,
W. H. AMES.

NOTES OF THE CONTEST.
As so many votes are mailed or brought to The Jeffersonian office to be cast, for convenience the ballot box has been removed from the bank to our office, and the count will take place there at 4 o'clock p. m. each Tuesday. Every candidate is invited to be present in person or by an authorized representative to witness each count. Our subscription, job and advertising books are also open to their inspection at any time. The publishers of The Jeffersonian have no interest in the success of any candidate, and want all of them to satisfy themselves that the contest is absolutely fair.

A Farmer's Life in Kentucky One Hundred Years Ago, Contrasted With That of a Farmer of To-Day.

BY VIRGINIA SNIVELY.

NOTE.—The essay below was written by Miss Snively in the Jeffersonian contest prize essay contest of the Louisville public schools and was awarded the first prize in Class which was competed for by pupils of the eighth grade. Contestants were assigned the subject upon which they wrote and were permitted to read, take notes, etc., in preparing the essay when the task of writing the essay began the actual work of composition was completed in the classroom, and no one had any assistance of any kind.—A very rigorous test.—Ed.

What great changes have taken place during the intervening years between 1807 and 1907! Improvements in machinery, improvements in transportation, improvements in manufacturing and in all things that help to improve an entire nation.

But that in which we are most interested at this time is the improvement in agriculture. From the preparing of the soil for planting, to the gathering of the ripe grain in the harvest time some change has been made that helps to make the farmer's work and life much easier.

What would one of those farmers of one hundred years ago think if he should step in on one of the present day farms and see its owner riding around his field on some sort of a machine that would do his plowing for him, another that would do the cultivating, and still another that does the reaping and binding?

Our fathers of one hundred years ago, when they first came from Virginia to Kentucky had to clear a place in the dense forest before any thing else could be done. Then a house had to be built. These houses were usually little one-room shacks or shanties; but these pioneers were willing to live in such comfortless dwellings, for they had come into this wilderness more for adventure than anything else. After this came the work of cultivating a small plot of ground.

They tilled the soil almost entirely by hand. What farming implements they had were very crude and roughly made. The ground had to be fertilized very heavily then, while now, the farmhands have been worked and cultivated for so long that very little of this is necessary.

Then, in planting, every seed had to be dropped in place and covered by hand but now there are machines for all of this.

In cultivating, most of this was then done with a hoe, while now, ploughs, both hand ploughs and one horse ploughs are used.

After the grain sprouted Mother Nature had to be waited on to furnish warmth and moisture for it, to keep it alive. Now, the fields can be irrigated, though not much of this is done in the state of Kentucky, for usually there is enough rainfall to keep the crops from becoming too dry.

When the time comes for harvesting the present-day farmer has all of the modern machines to help him; while the farmer of one hundred years ago had to cut all of his grain with a scythe or a sickle. Of course, this took very much more time than it does now.

In the raising of fruit there have been a great many important improvements. The art of grafting has been introduced into this country, and the grapes brought here have proved so profitable, that there are now quite a number of vineyards in Kentucky.

There are always some changes being made, someone is always inventing something new. The world never seems to be satisfied with what it has, it always wants something more—something better.

This dissatisfaction, however, only serves to make the people strive for higher things and thus better themselves in many ways.

rains have freshened stuff up and it all has a more thrifty appearance.

The free trip to the Jamestown Exposition offered by The Jeffersonian ought to move the people to doing something. What's the matter in District "B"? It looks like there ought to be something done. There are very many nice ladies in this district, and they are surely popular, the way the boys move around, but there must be one more popular than the others. Why not start something?

Oscar H. Reed is very sick at this time. We hope to see him going about soon.

Peniel Sunday school had their Children's Day exercises last Sunday, resulting in a large crowd and a happy time for the children.

Mrs. Thomas Chowning entertained a party of young folk Thursday in honor of her son's twenty-first birthday. The guests were Misses Bessie Snavely, Martha Churchman, Ethel Longacre and Clara Fisher and Masters Clyde Chowning, Edward Allen and John Churchman.

Suspend Judgment.

The Mayor and the Chief of Police of Louisville, each claiming to have taken the initiative, have caused the arrest of W. J. Semolina on the charge of embezzlement. This action was taken while a state examiner is engaged in an investigation of the ex-county clerk's accounts, and before any report has been made to the proper state officials. Until the State Inspector has completed his examination of the books it can not be known whether there is any basis for such an unusual proceeding as this or not, and all fair-minded people will suspend judgment until the facts are known. They're playing the game of politics overtime in Louisville during these piping hot days, and the friends of "Billy" Semolina are not convinced that there is anything criminal connected with his conduct of the clerk's office.

Meanwhile let us have the facts, from an official source, before we rush to the conclusion that the new regime alone is right, and the former officials are "in bad."

Concrete For Building.

One of the most substantial as well as one of the most beautiful business structures in Louisville is that of the Stewart Dry Goods Company at the corner of Fourth and Walnut streets. It is built entirely of concrete reinforced with steel, and is a splendid illustration of the results that can be obtained by the use of this new building material.

The rapidly diminishing supply of timber has emphasized the necessity of finding a substitute for wood for building purposes, and concrete seems to be a satisfactory solution of the problem.

The stone from which it is made is abundant and inexpensive, while the method of working it is very simple. Hollow building blocks cast from it are fire-proof and make a house built with them cooler in summer and warmer in winter than any other building material.

Besides its suitability for building uses, concrete also is admirably adapted for the construction of streets and sidewalks. It has cheapness of cost, ease of application and durability all in its favor.

The time is not far distant when its use in building and in the construction of streets will be general.

John Schindler (nee Barbara Steinmetz, of Fry's Hill), committed suicide Friday about noon by shooting himself through the heart with a .44-caliber pistol. The ball entered her left breast and passed diagonally through her body, made its exit under the right shoulder, struck and shattered a plate looking glass on the opposite side of the room, and then fell on the floor. She was alone in the house except for two small children. Her husband, who was working in his blacksmith shop about seventy-five feet from his dwelling, heard no report of the pistol. He was in the house at 9 o'clock and heard his wife walking up stairs, and at noon returned to the house for dinner. He went through the house and found his wife's dead body on the floor up stairs with the children, a little girl of two and a half years, lying across her dead mother's breast. Mrs. Schindler had been in bad health for a number of months and her mind had been affected by her health.

Once before, several years ago, she attempted suicide after an extreme illness from typhoid fever, and had been subject to fits of melancholia ever since, but it was not generally known, and her death was a great shock to this community. RESOLUTIONS

Adopted By the Jefferson County Teachers
Institute at the Close of Its Session in Louisville.

We, the committee on resolutions, bear to submit the following for the consideration of our fellow-members of the Jefferson County Institute now in session assembled:

Be it resolved,
First—That whereas the county is the government unit in Kentucky for every function except the administration of public schools, we recommend the abolition of the school district as the unit, and the substitution of the county unit.

Second—That whereas thousands of children in Kentucky attend no school and are thus a menace to the state, we urge the Legislature to enact a law that will embody the principle of continuous compulsory attendance during school age.

Third—That whereas some counties in Kentucky contain schools that do work for only six months in the year, we urge the Legislature to enact a law that will lead to a minimum school term of nine months.

Fourth—That whereas many trained teachers, in spite of the increased cost of living, receive less compensation than unskilled laborers, we hereby urge the enactment of a law which will forbid the employment of any teacher in Kentucky at a salary of less than sixty dollars per month.

Fifth—That whereas we recognize the importance of properly endowed institutions of higher learning, we recommend the transformation of the Kentucky State College into a State University equal to similar institutions in our sister states.

Sixth—That whereas the Department of Education of the Kentucky State College offers scholarships to teachers in every county of Kentucky, we pledge our support to this State Normal School.

Seventh—That we congratulate ourselves on having, in the person of Mrs. R. A. Stone, a lady of refinement and culture, one of genial disposition and pleasant manner, and one who by her sympathetic and untiring efforts for the teachers of Jefferson county, coupled with her conscientious and efficient service for the children of the county, has shown to be second to none of the County Superintendents of our state. That we, therefore, in appreciation of these virtues, pledge her our hearty cooperation in the work of the schools of our county, and assure her that we will do in our power to make the work of same pleasant and profitable.

Eighth—That we recognize in the person of Prof. A. S. Mackenzie of Kentucky State College, a gentleman of profound learning, a teacher of amiable disposition and pleasing address, and an instructor preeminently qualified to instruct and inspire a body of teachers to higher and broader fields of usefulness and enjoyment. That we, therefore, tender, a vote of thanks to Prof. Mackenzie for his efficient and faithful services rendered in our institute this week, and assure him that the fruits of his splendid instruction shall not return unto him void.

Ninth—That we tender our hearty thanks to the Louisville and its space so graciously accorded us in the columns of the daily papers.

Tenth—To the visiting teachers, members of the Louisville bar and medical profession for their earnest and practical addresses.

Eleventh—To Misses Bettie Lewis, Clara Konhorst and other talented friends who have contributed so greatly to our entertainment.

Twelfth—To the secretary and committee on program and entertainment, for the faithful discharge of their duties.

Thirteenth—To Jailer J. B. Phans and the staff of the jail, for the use of the joint session room, so admirably adapted to the comfort of the institute.

Fourteenth—To D. H. Baldwin & Co. for the use of the fine instrument and for the books.

Fifteenth—That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our institute and also furnished to the county paper, The Jeffersonian.

"WHATEVER IS, IS BEST."

(Anonymous.)

I know, as my life grows older,
And mine eyes have clearer sight,
That under each rank Wrong somewhere
There lies the root of Right;
That each sorrow has its purpose,
By the sorrowing oft unguessed,
But as sure as the sun brings morning,
Whatever is, is best.

I know that each sinful action,
As sure as the night brings shade,
Is sometime, somewhere punished,
Though the hour be long delayed,
I know that the soul is aided,
Sometimes by the heart's unrest,
And to grow means often to suffer;
But whatever is, is best.

I know there are no errors
In the great Eternal plan,
And all things work together
For the final good of man.
And I know when my soul speeds onward
In the grand, eternal quest,
I shall say, as I look earthward,
Whatever is, is best.

JULY 11, 1907.

TO CONTINENTAL AGENTS:

GENTLEMEN: I take pleasure in handing you herewith our semi-annual statement, showing the condition of the company as of July 1, 1907.

You will note that, notwithstanding the unprecedented shrinkage in the market value of securities during the last six months, the Continental has a Net Surplus of over eight million dollars—the largest of any company doing business in this country.

In the last three and one-half years, that is, since January 1, 1904, we have been able to pay net losses growing out of the Baltimore and San Francisco conflagrations aggregating $2,707,592, and provide for a shrinkage in market values during the past six months of $1,707,700. All this has been done in addition to paying our ordinary losses and usual dividends and yet our Net Surplus is $8,001,544.00 today as against $6,293,853.00, an increase in three and one-half years of $1,707,700.

We state these facts that you may know that when you represent the Continental you have a company that issues a policy that is good beyond question.

We have decided hereafter to pay all losses cash without discount. In some few cases it may be necessary to wait days before paying, and we reserve the right to do so where we desire to further investigate or await developments, but our rule will be to pay cash, no discount, in every case.

Yours very truly,

HENRY EVANS, President.

The Above Speaks For Itself.

THE GRAND OPENING!

—OF OUR—

NEW 5 AND 10 CENT COUNTER

Saturday, July 27, 1907.

EVER anxious to please our patrons and cater to their every want to the best of our ability, we have added a 5 and 10 cent department to our store. After considering the matter carefully, we came to the conclusion that the new department would be an innovation to be appreciated by the patrons of this store.

The 5 and 10 cent department will consist of an endless variety of articles, none of which will be priced higher than 10 cents each. It will also be a most instructive exhibit to the housewife, for here she can inspect hundreds of useful and ornamental creations intended to make the home more beautiful and comfortable. Many of these articles you have never read about for the reason that their small prices do not admit of a great expenditure to explain their desirability. One thing you can be sure of—

Whenever You Visit Our 5 and 10 Cent Department You Will Find it Full of Unusual Bargains

Which will be added from week to week.

Your presence on opening day—SATURDAY, JULY 27—is requested, and to emphasize this invitation we will give to each of the first 200 ladies
